A Tradition of Excellence: Thomas Edison State College

Thomas Edison State College, one of America's preeminent educational institutions, provides flexible, high-quality, collegiate learning opportunities for self-directed adults. Cited as "the college that paved the way for flexibility" by The New York Times and one of the top 20 colleges and universities in the nation in the use of technology to create learning opportunities for adults by Forbes magazine, Thomas Edison State College enables adults to build on their past achievements as a bridge to their future success.

The College offers the highest quality education to adults who have the inspiration, self-discipline and energy to complete a college degree despite the many conflicting demands of career, family and community. Founded in 1972, this world-renowned institution offers associate, bachelor's and master's degrees in more than 100 areas of study. Thomas Edison State College provides adults from every state in the United States and approximately 70 countries throughout the world with a wide variety of ways to complete a quality degree.

Thomas Edison State College pioneered the award of college credit for knowledge obtained in noncollegiate environments through its prior learning assessment (PLA) programs; lead in the development of taking college courses at a distance through the use of technology and is one of the nation's leading providers of worldwide education for the members of the United States military. As an innovation leader in higher education, it is developing new programs utilizing multiple mobile learning devices and 21st century assessment methods. The College, its leadership and programs are a tribute to its illustrious history. The College's Kelsey Building is recognized as one of the most important visual landmarks of the Trenton, N.J.,

State House Historic District, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Originally built by Henry Cooper Kelsey, a banker and politician with an appreciation for the arts, the Kelsey Building is a memorial to his wife, Prudence Townsend Kelsey, who died in 1904. The building was dedicated in 1911 as the School for Industrial Arts. In 1979, when Thomas Edison State College was looking to move from office space it had outgrown in the Forrestal Center outside of Princeton, N.J., the state was looking for an appropriate tenant for the landmark Kelsey Building, while the city sought to preserve the building's historic use as a school. All three concerns were brought together when state Senate President Joseph P. Merlino persuaded Gov. Brendan T. Byrne that, along with five adjoining townhouses, the Kelsey Building was ideal for College expansion.

Today, Thomas Edison State College's presence has expanded throughout the capital city. The College's campus comprises the Kelsey Building at 101 W. State St., and the five restored 19th-century townhouses adjacent to the Kelsey Building; the Academic Center at 167 W. Hanover St.; the Kuser Mansion (home of The John S. Watson Institute for Public Policy) at 315 W. State St.; the Canal Banks Building at 221 W. Hanover St.; the Center for Learning and Technology at 102 W. State St.; and the Nursing Education Center (under construction) at 301 W. State St.

Thomas Edison State College, however, is not contained by bricks and mortar. The College's reach is felt by all those who strive to create a better future for themselves and for their communities. In the true spirit of inspiration and innovation, Thomas Edison State College will continue to reinvent the future of higher education.

Academic Heraldry: The Symbols of Learning

While the current code concerning the types of academic regalia to be used by colleges in the United States dates from 1959, distinctive academic dress dates from the medieval universities of the eleventh and twelfth centuries. The college or university commencement procession today is a pageant, alive and bright with dress and ceremony derived from the tradition of the oldest universities.

Academic life as we know it today began in the Middle Ages — in Bologna and Paris, Oxford and Cambridge, Edinburgh, Glasgow and Louvain — first in the church, then in the guilds. The teaching guild was the Guild of the Master of Arts, where the bachelor was the apprentice of the master, and the dress was color-coded and patterned according to the academic level and discipline. In the hierarchy of the academic world, the associate's degree is the modern entry point. Its equivalent in the guild of teachers was that of a junior apprentice. Twelfth-century records of Oxford University state this justification for academic dress: "It is honorable and in accordance with reason that clerks to whom God has given an advantage of the lay folk in their adornments within, should likewise differ from the lay folk outwardly in dress."

There are three principal features of academic dress: the gown, the cap and the hood. Their design and heraldry were, from as early as the eleventh and twelfth centuries in the great European universities, the outward sign of the bringing together of students and privileged persons under the same discipline.

To preserve their dignity and meaning, it early became necessary for these universities to set rules for academic dress. American universities agreed on a system in 1895 and set up a suitable code of academic dress for the colleges and universities of the United States. In 1932, and again in 1959, the American Council on Education revised the code that, for the most part, governs the style of academic dress today.

THE GOWN. The flowing gown comes from the twelfth century. Many think it was worn in olden times as protection against the cold of unheated buildings. It has become symbolic of the democracy of scholarship, for it completely covers any dress of rank or social standing. The associate's degree gown is grey. The gown is black for all degrees above the associate's, with pointed sleeves for the bachelor's degree; oblong sleeves for the master's degree; and bell-shaped sleeves for the doctor's degree. For the bachelor's and master's degree, the gown has no trimmings. For the doctor's degree, it is faced down the front with velvet and has three bars of velvet across the sleeves in the color distinctive of the faculty or discipline to which the degree pertains. More recently, the official colors of Thomas Edison State College, burgundy and cream, have been used in the gown and its decorations.

THE CAP. When Roman law freed a slave, he won the privilege of wearing a cap. Thus, the academic cap is a sign of freedom of scholarship and the responsibility and dignity with which scholarship endows the wearer. Old poetry records the cap of scholarship as square to symbolize the book, although some authorities claim that the mortar board is the symbol of the masons, a privileged guild. The color of the tassel on the cap denotes the discipline. The associate's cap is grey. Caps for master's and doctor's degrees are often black, but may appear in other colors, as well, depending on the rest of the regalia.

THE HOOD. Almost all of the students and faculty in the medieval universities were clerics (minor church ecclesiastics) and were tonsured (i.e., had shaved heads), and the hood served to cover the shaved head from the cold of unheated buildings. Eventually, the hood was superseded by the skull cap and evolved into a headdress more or less like those in use today. Heraldically, the hood is an inverted shield with one or more chevrons of a secondary color on the ground of the primary color of the college. The color of the facing of the hood denotes the discipline represented by the degree; the color of the lining of the hood designates the college or university from which the degree was granted.

THE MACE. The mace — a heavy staff or club fashioned entirely of metal with a metal head — was originally a weapon of war. In the sixteenth century, it became a ceremonial standard and a scepter of office. It resembled the original weapon and was carried before officials at ceremonial occasions. A mace is still in use in the British House of Commons, where it lies upon the table before the speaker as a symbol of the authority of the House.

The mace of Thomas Edison State College was designed by the College and was inaugurated as the scepter of office at the October 1990 Commencement ceremony. It is a solid maple scepter with a two-sided medallion mounted to the head by a brass collar. There are three brass bands on the shaft, upon which the names of the College's three presidents and their terms are inscribed as follows: James Douglas Brown Jr., 1972-1978; Lorraine Rose Matusak, 1979-1982; and George A. Pruitt, 1982-present. The mace shaft and base are finished in mahogany.

Carried in the procession by the president of the Academic Council, the mace symbolizes the authority of the Office of the President.

Honorary Degree Recipient

Levi Watkins Jr.

Professor of Cardiac Surgery

Associate Dean of the School of Medicine

Dean of the Post-Doctoral Program

Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine

Dr. Levi Watkins Jr. was a cardiac surgeon who, in 1980, became the first surgeon to implant an automatic defibrillator in a human heart. The defibrillator is a small, battery-powered device that detects arrhythmia in the heart and emits an electric shock to correct it. Since that operation, it has saved millions of lives.

In 1966, Dr. Watkins earned his Bachelor of Science in Biology from Tennessee State University, graduating first in his class. He was the first African American to be admitted to the Vanderbilt School of Medicine, and graduated in 1970. He was also the first African American to complete a surgical internship at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine. After his residency, he studied for two years at Harvard Medical School's Department of Physiology, performing breakthrough research for the renin angiotensin system in congestive heart failure. When he returned to Johns Hopkins in 1975, he became the first black chief resident in heart surgery at the university. He remained at Johns Hopkins for the rest of his career, making many improvements to the defibrillator and doing pioneer work in open-heart surgery.

Dr. Watkins was born in Parsons, Kansas, although he was raised in Montgomery, Alabama. He was a committed advocate for human rights and had a distinguished history with the civil rights movement. He attended the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church, where he met Dr. Martin Luther King. Inspired by King, he became involved in the civil rights movement and joined the King-supervised Crusaders youth group.

During his tenure as a professor of cardiac surgery and associate dean at the Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, Maryland, Dr. Watkins increased the number of black students five-fold between 1978 and 1983. He also served on the medical school's admissions board where he was able to create a student body more representative of the country as a whole.

Because of his pioneering medical research coupled with his outspoken commitment to social justice, Dr. Watkins became a respected and revered figure at Johns Hopkins, and throughout our nation. His portrait is now hung in the Vanderbilt School of Medicine and in the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine. He was also a former member of the Board of Trustees of Vanderbilt University and has an endowed chair in his name at the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine.

Dr. Levi Watkins Jr. passed away on April 11, 2015.

Star Spangled Banner

By Francis Scott Key

Oh, say can you see by the dawn's early light

What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?

Whose broad stripes and bright stars thru the perilous fight,

O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?

And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,

Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.

Oh, say does that star-spangled banner yet wave

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?
